CURBING THE KAISER.

WILLIAM'S DESPOTIC TENDENCIES WILL MEET STERN RESISTANCE.

The Tariff Question Looming Up as a Dangerous Issue in German Politics—Strength of the Parties in the Reichstag—A Warning to Russia.

[Copyright by New York Associated Press.]
BERLIN, April 12.—Immediately upon his return from Wiesbaden Emperor William will hold a series of prolonged conferences with the heads of the various departments. It is reported to be the determination of the Emperor to exercise a rigid personal scrutiny over every measure. Besides overloading himself with work he in the mean time threatens to paralyze ministerial work. None of the bills based on the decisions of the Labor Conference and prepared by Baron von Bismarck have yet received the final imperial sanction. The assent of the Bundesrath to the measures is doubtful. The federal governments do not share the Emperor's eager haste for reforms.

Beyond the pregnant fact that the Reichstag will be asked to grant a military credit of probably 800,000,000 marks, nothing is known of the government's programme. The Progressist press indulges in visions of a change in the tariff policy, a reduction of the duties on cereals and on articles absolutely necessary for the use of the people. It is not believed that the Emperor will entangle himself in the difficulties entailed by a revision of the tariffs, which would involve complete reforms in the whole financial and fiscal system of the Empire. Neither the Reichstag nor the Bundesrath will ever assent to an extension of the imperial powers toward absolutism. Already the leading federal princes of the empire, incredulous of the Emperor's capacity and scared by his methods of governing, are trying to tone down his self-confidence. The governments of Bavaria, Württemberg, and Saxony, which hold fourteen votes in the Bundesrath, will not co-operate in imperial measures unless the Emperor consults them more on the general lines of his policy.

The Reichstag will meet with the various parties undetermined, awaiting the effect of the government programme before grouping themselves. The official record of the composition of the Reichstag, after the second ballots, is as follows: Conservatives, 72; Imperialists, 19; National Liberals, 43; Free Nationalists, 10; Socialists, 35; Volkspartei, 10; Poles, 16; Guelphs, 11; Reichslanders, 10; Anti-Semites, 5; Democrats, 1.

The Post announces that the Military bill will provide for a large increase of troops. The announcement agrees with the opinion held in official circles that the Emperor will abide by a strong foreign policy. The Pesther Lloyd in an official communication alluding to the concentration of 150,000 Russian troops on the Austrian frontier, says it rejoices in the formal renewal of the triple alliance and warns Russia that the allied powers will not much longer submit to continued provocation.

CONGRATULATING STANLEY.

Seven Senators Send Him Greeting by Graphophone Messages.

This afternoon seven Senators—Hawley, Squire, Allison, Hale, Gray, Gibson, and Manderson—sent congratulations and complimentary messages to Henry M. Stanley, through Col. Geauroud, Edison's European partner. The messages were spoken in the phonograph, and will be repeated to Stanley at a dinner to be given him by Col. Geauroud on his arrival in Paris. Particularly enough it happens that four of the Senators—Manderson, Hawley, Squire, and Gibson—are personally acquainted with the great explorer.

Col. Geauroud, by request of President Harrison, reproduced at the White House to-day in the presence of the President, Mr. Andrew Carnegie, Mr. William Garrison, and Private Secretary Halford, Mr. Gladstone's message recently sent to New York.

Col. Geauroud sailed for London Wednesday next, after having secured a consolidation of the phonograph and graphophone interests in Europe, which have heretofore been antagonistic.

They Fear the McKinley Bill.

The Reward of Virtue.

A package containing $638 was found in one of the Fourteenth street cars on Tuesday by the conductor. He promptly turned it in at the office on Broadway street, and the grateful owner sent him a one-dollar bill the next morning.

A Good Showing—Equitable C. B. Association.

The Equitable, in announcing the opening of a new issue of stock, (the nineteenth), takes occasion to give some figures, showing what has actually been accomplished by this association as a cooperative saving and loaning institution. It furnishes indisputable evidence that it has successfully aided its membership in saving, in the aggregate, a large sum of money, upon which safe and sure profits have been realized; and, also, that hundreds have paid, and are successfully paying for their homes. This association is not only a benefit to its shareholders, by causing them to become thrifty and economic people, but it has a widespread, healthy influence upon real values and the best business interests throughout the city and District.

The Equitable is in its eleventh year, and considering the excellent results secured it cannot be termed an experiment, but, on the contrary, a practical, positive success, a credit to the city of Washington, the shareholders, and officers.

JEALOUSY LEADS TO MURDER.

Fatal Affray Between Boys on the Pennsylvania Avenue Bridge.

Pennsylvania Avenue Bridge received its baptism of blood on Friday night, when Charles Thompson stabbed Murray Casseen, who died early Saturday morning at his home, a small shanty on Fourteenth street southeast. The participants were hardly more than boys. Jealousy was the cause of the fracas. Casseen, who was the aggressor, became mad with jealousy on seeing Thompson escorting an acquaintance, a girl named Ada Young, and with three companions assaulted Thompson. The latter drew a penknife which had a blade about 2½ inches long, and it was with this the cutting was done. Casseen was stabbed twice in the back and slightly cut in the left leg. The wounded man walked a mile to the office of Dr. Parker, Eighth and E streets southeast, where his wounds were dressed.

When he went home from the doctor's office he fainted from loss of blood. He died about 2 o'clock. Casseen was about nineteen years of age, while Thompson is but eighteen. Thompson was arrested yesterday morning. Last night the police arrested Charles Bradshaw, Joseph Burch, and Charles Posey and locked them up as accessories to the murder. The coroner will hold an inquest to-day at the Fifth Precinct Station.

FEAR CONQUERS THE CZAR.

He May Consent to a Parliament in Order to Save His Own Life.

BERLIN, April 12.—Court advisers from St. Petersburg are at the moment in favor of a constitution finds adherents in the Czar's circle. The Grand Duke Vladimir, the Czar's brother, induced less by liberalism than by fears of a revolution, heads a ministerial section that is urging the Czar to create a parliament consisting of representatives of the nobility elected by the Zemstvos, with a limited number of delegates elected by towns. The Czar's repugnance to a parliament is reported as giving way, under the belief that the establishment of a parliament would put an end to the attempts on his life.

The Review of the Troops.

The review of the regulars stationed in Washington, the Marine Corps and District Militia, held at the White Lot in honor of the Pan-Americans Friday was a great success. About 4:30 P. M. the division was ordered to move in review by Col. Gibson and for half an hour the troops marched past President Harrison, who was the reviewing officer. Secretaries Blaine, Proctor and Knapp, Attorney General Miller, Postmaster General Wanamaker, and Gen. Schofield. The troops marched from Seventeenth street to Fifteenth street and thence to Pennsylvania Avenue and Four-and-a-half street, hemmed in on all sides by a large and admiring throng of citizens who ranged themselves in solid banks along the sidewalks. A feature of the parade was the appearance of the High School Battalion, which did admirably and was heartily cheered all along the line.

The Cable Cars Running.

Yesterday was a red-letter day for Seventh street, as it saw the formal opening of the cable car system on that great business thoroughfare. At noon four trains of three cars each were started on the inaugural trip. They were loaded down with officers and directors of the road and invited guests. The trip was in every way a success. The cars continued to run all the afternoon, crowded with curious people who wanted to enjoy the sensation of a ride on a cable car. Every one seemed to like the new style of propulsion.

Yale-Harvard Athletics.

NEW HAVEN, CONN., April 12.—A mass meeting of the students of Yale was held this afternoon, and the reported failure to agree by the committee on athletics of Yale and Harvard was discussed. Gill said that as Yale wishes to play Princeton again next fall, two foot-ball games with Harvard, as is asked by Harvard, will be an impracticability. Yale's committee will confer with Harvard's committee soon, with the instructions from the University that they insist on all the original points.

Emmett on Another Speech.

PHILADELPHIA, April 12.—J. K. Emmett reappeared at the Continental Hotel this morning, but not as mysteriously as he had disappeared on the day before. ## BETWEEN LIFE AND DEATH.

MR. RANDALL HOVERING ON THE BRINK OF ETERNITY.

His Death Expected at Any Moment—The Afflicted Family Called to His Bedside by a Bad Sinking Spell Early Last Evening—How the Day and Night Were Spent

Representative Randall still kept up his brave fight against death up to an early hour this morning. Only his wonderful will-power and strong desire to live have kept him alive since early yesterday morning, when the grief-stricken watchers about his bed thought that the end had come. So near death was the distinguished patient at this time that Dr. Mallon said afterwards that it was only by close scrutiny could the faint respirations of the sick man be detected at all. Towards dawn Mr. Randall rallied, but all day yesterday he continued to hover between life and death. At any moment, the physician said, the end might come.

Among the callers at the house to inquire after Mr. Randall were Secretary Blaine and Postmaster General Wanamaker. An inquiry also came from the President.

At 8 o'clock last night when Dr. Mallon entered the patient's room he found him in great pain apparently and breathing heavily. With some difficulty the doctor relieved Mr. Randall of a large quantity of phlegm which was clogging his wind pipe. This gave temporary relief, but soon after the patient grew weaker. He had two sinking spells that alarmed his family very much. The members gathered about his bed expecting death at any moment. Postmaster General Wanamaker called shortly after with the intention of remaining all night at the Randall residence.

As faithful as the family are the newspaper men watching outside in cabs for any change for the worse. Many of them have been keeping watch for the past three nights, only relinquishing their posts when the hour of 5 in the morning is reached.

At 3 o'clock this morning there was no change in Mr. Randall's condition.

A BANQUET TO MR. WARNER.

Handsomely Entertained by the Directors of the Columbia Bank.

Last evening Mr. E. H. Warner was tendered a banquet at Willard's by the board of directors of the Columbia National Bank. Plates were laid for fifty. The menu was of the finest.

Before sitting down to the repast Mr. Warner was presented with a handsome silver tea set, Col. Parker making the presentation speech, to which Mr. Warner responded in a few well-chosen words, thanking the board of directors for this mark of esteem and friendship. Numerous speeches were made during the repast. Col. Britton, vice president of the bank, was toasted several times and responded. The following gentlemen were present as guests of the directors: Hon. John W. Thompson, E. Kurtz Johnson, T. H. Comp. E. S. Parker, Justice Harlan, Hon. Perry Willard, Theo. Noyes, and P. J. Bell. Those who proposed toasts or made speeches were Col. Britton, Col. Parker, John W. Thompson, E. Kurtz Johnson, Col. Truesdale, Perry Willard, E. S. Parker, Charles Bell, O. H. Staples, T. H. Comp, and Theo. Noyes. At 12 sharp the festivities were brought to a close.

Last Wednesday the employees of the Columbia National Bank presented Mr. Warner with a handsome set of books, "Half Hours with the Best Authors," in appreciation of his once more assuming the responsibility of president. Mr. Gray, of the bank, made the presentation speech, to which Mr. Warner responded feelingly.

On Friday evening still another presentation was made to Mr. Warner by depositors of the bank. A committee representing the depositors, called at Mr. Warner's residence and presented him with a beautiful marble bust of Apollo.

SENATOR STANFORD CRITICISED.

Callis P. Huntington Charges Him with Mixing Politics in Business.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., April 12.—C. P. Huntington, in the course of an interview last night concerning his address made when he assumed the office of president of the Southern Pacific, said: "I did not think that what I said would create so much feeling as it appears to have done. I do not want the public to think I am opposed to Senator Stanford's political success, or that I bear him any personal hostility. Our only differences have arisen from his mixing the company up with politics. This company was organized to build and operate railroads, and there has been a good deal too much attention paid to politics. I have been very much opposed to this thing, and have told Stanford so. About four months ago, when he was in New York, I made a decided protest. I expected to at once sever the Southern Pacific from all others in this State as a corporation." Continuing, President Huntington said there would be no change in the policy of the company, aside from the one announced in his address.

A CORNER IN PORK.

IT CREATES THE LIVELIEST KIND OF A TIME IN CHICAGO.

Prices Sent Kiting Four Dollars a Barrel in a Few Hours—Exciting Scenes Attending the Transaction—The Originators of the Corner Give Up.

CHICAGO, April 12.—When trade opened in pork to-day the wildest excitement prevailed, the crowd wailing up to the fact that the market was cornered. For some months past the Sawyer-Wallace clique, of New York, it is generally supposed, have been buying up pork, and when business started in this morning there was not any pork for sale under $12.75. As the closing price yesterday was $11.45, this was a mighty big bulge, but there was "worse and more of it" later. It kept advancing five cents or more at a time, and before the close of the first hour was selling at $15.35. As is usually the case when prices are booming at that rate, very little was sold, but there was tremendous excitement and the pit was crowded with the traders and spectators. July pork showed a similar advance, and lard and ribs were somewhat higher. McCormick & Co., the representatives of the New York clique, were again prominent as buyers of July pork, and Armour, Hutchinson, Poole, and Baldwin were also buyers. Later in the morning Hutchinson's men bid $15.75 for July pork, which was an advance of more than $4 per barrel over last night's closing prices. It was apparent the clique was after some big shorts, most of the orders coming from New York to Hutchinson. As no regular pork can be made until October, the clique has control of all the months up to that time. Subsequently July pork was offered at $12.55, and it looked as though some big shorts had run in, for the offerings were numerous and there were no bids. It was said that one house called margins for $500,000 on provisions. A good many of the board, however, attributed the squeeze to Armour. They say that the Sawyer-Wallace clique transferred the deal to him when they found they were unable to carry it through and that his is now the master hand. Halley & Swift were large buyers of lard, and Armour bought ribs, while T. J. Ryan & Co. bought 4,000,000 pounds of May and July ribs.
